The Word This Week

Faithfulness, faith, and trust. These most invisible and difficult things are what God asks of us, just as we, in our own way, ask them of those who love us. “Trust me”, we say, “all will be well.” And if someone does trust us, the reward is simply that trust was well-placed. We have done our duty. Sometimes when we talk about faith, we put the emphasis on believe and accept. Today’s readings (especially the passage from Habakkuk) invite us to think in terms of trust. This reading is clearly in two parts, Habakkuk’s complaint and God’s reply. What is very important about this reading is that the prophet’s question is one of the most common and contemporary questions people raise about the very existence of God: it could be paraphrased as “Lord, why do bad things happen in our world? And why don’t you do anything?” Look carefully at Habakkuk’s words and see how he puts this question: The second part, God’s answer, is much harder: it is an answer that is not an answer. It could be paraphrased simply as “Be patient. Trust me.” This will be brought out most in the words “if it comes slowly, wait, for come it will without fail.” There is also an important point in the last two lines, where the word faithfulness appears Paul’s second letter to Timothy, the young man he ordained and set in charge of a church community. The advice he gives today fits well with the ideas in the other readings, since Paul is recommending faithfulness, patience, and perseverance to the young bishop. Remembering this, Timothy is to “bear the hardships relying on the power of God.” Even for those not ordained, this is good advice. The request of the Apostles is interesting: “Increase our faith” could also mean “Make it easier for us,” or “Prove that you are who you say you are.” Jesus replies that he can’t do that, you can’t make someone trust you. It has to be a gift, freely given.
